

What is the moral of your story? What lesson are you going to teach the reader about? Introduce the character that is going to learn the lesson. Try to include a detail that is the opposite of the moral. Example morals:          Don't judge a book by its cover;          Nobody believes a liar, even when they're telling the truth;          Don't run before you can walk;          Think before you act;          Cheaters never prosper.	Which WOW words can you use in this paragraph?          What punctuation could you use?
Your characters does something that hurts your character or another character in some way. Explain what they do and how others react to it.	Which WOW words can you use in this paragraph?          What punctuation could you use?
Your character realises that they've done something wrong. What is their next action? Are they forgiven or not? How have they learned their lesson?	Which WOW words can you use in this paragraph?          What punctuation could you use?